

Legacy employers – template letter to notify employees of JobKeeper direction to change duties or work location

Who can use this template letter?

Legacy employers who want to give a JobKeeper direction to change duties or work location that applies after 27 September can use this template to notify their employees of their intent to issue the new direction.

Existing JobKeeper enabling directions and agreements for legacy employers ended on 27 September 2020. If you're a legacy employer and need to modify your employee's working arrangements (e.g. hours of work or days of work) after this date, you will need to re-issue or make new directions and agreements with your relevant employees.

A new JobKeeper direction to change duties or work location can be used by a legacy employer to direct a previously eligible employee to perform duties:

- that are different to those that the employee usually performs, or
- at a place different from the employee's normal place of work, including at the employee's home.

Go to Legacy employers and JobKeeper enabling directions and agreements for legacy employers at coronavirus.fairwork.gov.au/JobKeeper for information about:

- who is a legacy employer
- meeting the 10% decline in turnover test each quarter, and certificate/statutory declaration requirements
- the rules and requirements for legacy employers when issuing JobKeeper directions or making JobKeeper agreements.

How do I issue a direction as a legacy employer?

To issue the direction, you need to:

 Notify your employees in writing that you intend to issue a JobKeeper direction to change their duties or work location

You can use this template letter below to do this. You need to notify a previously eligible employee in writing of your intention to give the direction at least 7 days before giving the direction (unless they genuinely agree to a shorter timeframe).

The Fair Work Ombudsman is committed to providing you with advice that you can rely on.

2. Consult with your employees about the proposed direction

Employers need to consult with the employee about the proposed direction during the 7 day notice period before giving the direction and keep a written record of the consultation. The rules about consultation are set out in Step 9 of the checklist below.

You can read more about how to consult with your employees on JobKeeper enabling directions and agreements for legacy employers at coronavirus.fairwork.gov.au/JobKeeper

3. Give the JobKeeper direction to change duties or work location in writing

Once you have notified your employee of your intention to issue a direction and genuinely consulted with them on it, you can use our Legacy employers – template letter for issuing a JobKeeper direction to change duties or work location to issue the direction in writing to change the employee's duties or work location.

Checklist: What legacy employers must consider before changing an employee's duties or work location

Legacy employers can only give a JobKeeper direction to change an employee's duties or work location to their previously eligible employees in certain circumstances.

Use the below checklist to ensure you're meeting your obligations before issuing the direction.

☐ Step 1 – Confirm you are a legacy employer
To be a legacy employer you must:
$\Box$ have participated in the JobKeeper scheme before 28 September 2020 but no longer qualify (or choose not to participate) on or after 28 September 2020.
☐ Step 2 – Confirm you're eligible to give a JobKeeper direction to an employee
You must:
$\Box$ be able to show at least a 10% decline in actual GST turnover for the previous quarter compared with the same quarter in 2019 ( '10% decline in turnover test'), and
$\square$ have a certificate from an eligible financial service provider confirming that you have satisfied the 10% decline in turnover test (or, if you're a small business employer , be able to provide a statutory declaration to that effect), and
$\Box$ have previously received the JobKeeper payment in relation to the employee you want to give the direction to before 28 September 2020 ( previously eligible employee ).

☐ Step 3 – Make sure you're giving the direction because it is necessary to continue employing one or more employees
The direction won't apply to the employee unless the employer reasonably believes that the direction is necessary to continue the employment of 1 or more employees.
For more information visit JobKeeper wage subsidy scheme at coronavirus.fairwork.gov.au/JobKeeper
☐ Step 4 – Make sure the direction complies with the following requirements
Change in duties
If you're changing an employee's duties, make sure that that:
$\square$ the new duties are within their skill and competency
$\square$ the new duties are safe (including having regard to the nature and spread of coronavirus)
$\square$ the employee has any required licences and/or qualifications to perform the new duties, and
$\Box$ the new duties are reasonably within the scope of your business operations. For example, you can't direct an employee to do odd jobs unrelated to the operation of the business.
Change in work location
If you're changing an employee's work location (including to the employee's home), make sure that:
$\square$ the location is suitable for their work

The Fair Work Ombudsman is committed to providing you with advice that you can rely on.

$\Box$ they don't have to travel an unreasonable distance (including considering the circumstances surrounding coronavirus)
$\Box$ it's safe for the employee to perform their job at the new location (including considering the nature and spread of coronavirus), and
$\hfill\Box$ the employee performing their duties at the new location is reasonably within the scope of your business operations.
For more information visit JobKeeper wage subsidy scheme at coronavirus.fairwork.gov.au/JobKeeper
☐ Step 5 – Check what wages you will need to pay
When an employee is subject to an enabling direction about location or duties, you need to pay the employee their usual pay for any hours that the employee does work (including any allowances and penalty rates) while the direction applies (taking into account any higher base pay rate for any new duties). If the temporary new duties attract a higher pay rate (for example, under an applicable award or enterprise agreement), you must pay the employee the higher pay rate.
! IMPORTANT An employee's base pay rate can't be reduced while a direction to change usual duties is in place.
☐ Step 6 – Make sure the direction is implemented safely, including considering the nature and spread of coronavirus
Learn more about Health and safety in the workplace during coronavirus at coronavirus.fairwork.gov.au
☐ Step 7 – Make sure the direction is reasonable
You have to take into account all of the circumstances, including:  the employee's caring responsibilities  if the direction applies to a category of employees, making sure it doesn't have an unfair effect on

 if the direction applies to a category of employees, making sure it doesn't have an unfair effect on some employees in that category compared to others

If a direction is unreasonable, it doesn't apply.

☐ Step 8 – Use this template letter to notify the affected employee

You must notify the employee in writing of your intention to give the direction at least 7 days before issuing the direction (unless the employee genuinely agrees to a shorter timeframe).

! IMPORTANT

This template letter has been colour coded to assist you to complete it accurately. You simply need to replace the red < > writing with what applies to your previously eligible employee and situation.

Explanatory information is shown in blue italics to assist you and should be deleted once you have finished the letter.

Provide the letter to the employee and keep a copy of the letter for your records.

This template letter is only suitable for legacy employers who are entitled to give a JobKeeper direction. If this doesn't apply to you, please do not use this template. View our other template letters available on our Tools and resources during coronavirus page at coronavirus.fairwork.gov.au/coronavirus-and-australian-workplace-laws/contact-us/tools-and-resources-during-coronavirus

The Fair Work Ombudsman is committed to providing you with advice that you can rely on.

Once you've used this template to provide notice to your employees that you intend to issue a new direction, continue the steps in this checklist.

☐ Step 9 – Consult with the affected employee

Before giving the direction, you have to consult with the employee about the proposed direction and take their views into consideration. If you don't do this, the direction won't apply to the employee.

An employee can appoint a representative, which can be their union. If they do, you must recognise the representative and consult with them.

To consult with the employee or representative you have to:

 $\hfill\Box$  provide information about the direction, when it will take effect and how you expect it will affect the employee,  $\hfill$

 $\Box$  ask for the employee's views on the impact of the direction (for example on their family or caring responsibilities).

You must promptly and genuinely consider the previously eligible employee's views in the 7 day period prior to you giving a direction. You aren't required to disclose confidential or commercially sensitive information.

If you have previously notified and consulted with the employee on a proposed direction, you don't need to notify or consult with the employee again if:

 $\Box$  in relation to the previous direction, you complied with the above outlined notification and consultation obligations, and

☐ in deciding to issue this direction, you considered any views expressed by the employee or their representative in the consultation which occurred before the earlier direction.

☐ Step 10 – Keep a written record of the consultation

You must keep a written record of the consultation.

☐ Step 11 – Use our 'Legacy employers - template letter for issuing a JobKeeper direction to change duties or work location' to give the direction to the employee

You can only give the direction in writing after you've:

- 1. given the employee notice in writing (e.g. by using this template letter)
- 2. consulted with the employee or their representative and made any relevant changes to the intended direction.

Once you have completed the steps above, you can give the JobKeeper direction.

The direction must be given in writing to the employee. To give the direction, you can use our Legacy employers - template letter for issuing a JobKeeper direction to change duties or work location. You can

Your direction to change <'duties' or 'location of work'>

From <insert date>, I intend to change your <insert details of direction i.e. 'duties' or 'location of work'> as follows:

• [Delete if not relevant] <insert details of how the employee's duties have been changed i.e. 'from current duties as a Regional manager to new duties as a Sales assistant'>

• [Delete if not relevant] your current location of work will be changed from <insert original address> to <insert new address>.

Meeting to discuss this letter

I would like to consult with you about my intent to give you this JobKeeper direction.

If you would like to, you are entitled to appoint a representative to consult with me about the JobKeeper direction on your behalf. The representative can be your union.

Are you (and/or your representative) available <insert method of contact e.g. by phone or in-person> on <insert date of proposed meeting> at <insert time/place>?

Please contact me on <insert phone number/email address> to:

- provide me with the name and details of your representative, if you want to appoint one
- confirm your (and/or your representative's) availability to attend the proposed meeting or to advise if this time is not convenient so a new time can be scheduled.

What will I be paid?

[Delete if not relevant] You will be paid your normal pay for all time worked. Your pay will not be reduced during this period.

[Explanatory information – please delete once you have finished the letter]

An employee's base pay rate can't be reduced while a direction to change usual duties is in place. If the temporary new duties attract a higher base pay rate (for example, under an applicable award or enterprise agreement), the employee needs to be paid the higher pay rate.

[Delete if not relevant] Because the duties I intend to direct you to do attract a higher pay rate under <insert award or agreement details>, you will be paid the higher pay rate during this period of $<insert pay rate> per hour. You will also be paid any applicable entitlements (for example allowances and penalty rates) at this higher rate during this period.

Where can I go for support?

If you have any questions, please contact me on <insert contact details>.

For up to date information about your workplace entitlements and obligations during coronavirus you can visit the Fair Work Ombudsman coronavirus website at coronavirus.fairwork.gov.au.

What to do next?

☐ Please contact me as soon as possible on <insert contact details> to confirm you (and/or your representative's) availability to attend the proposed meeting to discuss this letter, or to schedule a new time.

Once we have discussed my intention to give you this direction, I'll consider our discussion and notify you as soon as possible of any changes. When giving you the direction, I will notify you in writing at least 7 days from the cate-of-this-letter.

Thank you.
